FIRST ROUND IS COMPLETE

Important Stage in Royal Commission's Investigations.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER READ

In it Minto Informed Clarke That no Commission Could be Secured From Bond Sale.

The first round of the Waterways investigation is over and the honors are undoubtedly with the government. Yesterday afternoon when the commission adjourned to meet again in Winnipeg next Tuesday, both Sidney B. Woods, ex-deputy attorney general and James K. Cornwall, member for Peace River had been examined and cross-examined, but despite the assertion of the insurgents that they could unseat Cornwall as soon as they got him or the witness stand and could also prove through Mr. Woods that the deal with Clarke and his associates had not been open and above board they had failed signally.

With the clearest of counsel they have been unable to connect Cornwall with the road in any way and despite the fact that all the governments, documents have been brought down for their inspection and that nothing has been withheld by any of the witnesses they have been unable to prove that the deal was not the best possible one that could be made and that everything is not as it should be.

If anything were needed to prove that Clarke did not need a commission for the sale of the bonds was brought out yesterday when W. L. Walsh, chief counsel for the commission laid on the table a copy of a letter taken from the personal files of G. D. Minto, solicitor for the company. This letter was written to Clarke and it stated clearly and distinctly that no commission could be obtained for the simple reason that the contract with the Province of Alberta stated that the full proceeds of the bonds were to be placed to the credit of the government. And this was done. Clarke not only did not get any commission but if he had done so the money would not have gone into his own pocket but would have been turned into the construction of the road. This was made clear in Minto's letter.

HOUSE VOTED $9,000,000

Dominion Parliament is Getting Down to Important Work.

Ottawa, April 23.—After spending practically all the morning and afternoon yesterday debating a complaint by T. D. Taylor that the franking of a weekly pamphlet by the solicitor-general during the recess constitutes an abuse of the franking privileges the House got down to work on the estimates and before it adjourned at 10:30, voted over $9,000,000.

This included votes for the Indian department, a portion of the post-office estimates and a large number of miscellaneous items. The rapidity with which votes were allowed to go through indicates a determination to bring the session to a speedy termination and Wednesday, May 4th, will probably see the House prorogue. On Monday an effort will be made to dispose of 11th McKenzie's anti-combines bill, and if that is done the insurance bill will be taken up.

Debate on the alleged abuse of the franking privileges was concluded with a division on a motion by Mr. Taylor, the government having a majority of 30. When the House rose, Hon. Geo. P. Graham laid the annual railway subsidies on the table and they are all ready, no new subsidies being provided for.

Mount Victory, Ohio, April 23.—As a result of poisoned candy being scattered in the streets several times in two weeks fifty dogs have been killed and at least a dozen children made ill. A package of chocolates was picked up in the streets by the authorities and analyzed showing that each contained enough strychnine to kill a child. The candy was put in the street at night.

CONFESSES MURDER AFTER SIX YEARS

Illinois Man Says That in 1904 he Pushed his Wife Into the Niagara Falls.

Antioch, Ill., April 23.—Foster Johnson appeared voluntarily before Justice of the Peace Jones yesterday and confessed that six years ago he threw his wife over Niagara Falls.

He said he wanted to be taken back for trial, that he feared remorse would drive him to suicide. He had escaped suspicion in connection with the crime, the coroner's jury having returned a verdict of suicide after the finding of the woman's body.

Johnson said the murder was committed on October 4, 1904. He and his wife had had several quarrels because of the attentions Johnson paid to other women. Mrs. Johnson asked him to accompany her on a walk through the state reservation on the American side of the falls.

The quarrels was renewed during the walk, Johnson said. While they were on the edge of the river above the falls Johnson in a fit of anger pushed his wife into the stream, watching until she was swept over the cataract.

Killed Fifteen Year Old Girl, Throwing her While Yet Alive in Fireplace.

After an hour and fifty minutes of deliberation a jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree at 10:30 o'clock last night, bringing to a close a trial marked by its swift execution. It was said yesterday afternoon that Wolter was too tender-hearted to harm, but he had strangled Ruth Wheeler and thrust her while yet alive into his fireplace, where he smothered her body with oil and burned it. With the same indifference he had shown throughout the trial Wolter evidenced no emotion when the verdict was announced.

The growth of Toronto is indicated in the estimates. The expenditures this year will total $6,808,755 as against $6,081,321 in 1909, or an increase this year of $727,434. The estimated revenues are placed at the same figure. The tax rate has been fixed at 17 1/2 mills on the dollar. This is a mill less than in 1909. The net debt of the city is $26,649,397.60.

The following afternoon a neighbor came over and found the men still breathing. Simon was left alive but Peter died before medical aid reached him.

TAKES DRIVE ABOUT TOWN

Had Interview With the Mayor, Commissioner Bulchard and City Engineer this Morning.

Alexander C. Potter, C.E., the New York expert, who is to give Edmonton the best possible sewage and waterworks systems, arrived in the city this morning by C.N.R. from Winnipeg. Immediately upon his arrival he was taken to the mayor's office by City Engineer Latourne, who met him at the station. A conference was held at the station. Mr. Potter and Mr. McLean of the waterworks department were present.

After the conversation was over, a Capital reporter saw Mr. Potter, who announced that he would start work on his examination of the city immediately. The city engineer will drive the consulting engineer over the city this afternoon in order that he may become thoroughly acquainted with Edmonton conditions.

"How long do you expect to be here, Mr. Potter?" asked the reporter.

Mr. Potter smiled. "You will have to ask Mr. Latourne that question," he said.

9. Then it was the city engineer's turn to smile. "And you'll have to wait some days yet for an answer," he added.

HEAVEN VIA LEGISLATION

Senator Davis, of Prince Albert, on Miller Bill.

FIXING OTHER'S CONDUCT

Peaceful Citizens, he Said, Could Not Walk Abroad Without Being Interfered With.

Ottawa, April 23.—In the upper house yesterday Senator Wilson moved the second reading of the bill to amend the criminal code in other words, Miller's anti-gambling bill.

Senator Davis said he would like to have some points of this measure explained. He noticed that places of less than 5,000 population are not to be allowed the same privileges in connection with horse racing which were given to places of 15,000 or more. He would like to know if this bill would set the annual races which were held in connection with the exhibition at Prince Albert. He said this bill was proposed to have already entailed an expenditure of over forty thousand dollars. That such an amount had to be expended to advance a bill to compromise the point was in itself a serious criticism of the character of the legislation.

This was a sample of the bills which are becoming more numerous each year, which were strenuously promoted by a class of people who wanted to regulate the conduct of other people. It was an excellent specimen of that class of legislation which was designed to send people to heaven by means of the criminal code, a method which Senator Davis could not endorse.

There were so many laws of this sort in existence now that a peaceful citizen could not walk abroad for three days or three hours without having made himself liable to be interfered with. It was time to put an end to this sort of legislation. Senator Davis wanted cities of 5,000 people given all rights which are given to cities of 15,000 people. Senator McLaugh said that in the committee stage he would like some legislation given of apparent discrimination between running and loose racing. Betting meetings were allowed to continue for seven days, while trotting meets were restricted to three days. The bill was read a second time.

Parents Use King's Gift to Take Up Land in Alberta.

Ottawa, April 23.—The first quadruplets that ever went into the Canadian Northwest passed here on their way to Lacombe, Alberta. David Grant and wife of Wentworth, N.S., are the parents. King Edward gave them a present of $500 for each of the quadruplets, two boys and two girls.

The children are now aged eleven months, all active and well. With the $2,000 the parents decided to go West and with the quadruplets and their three other children they are now on their way there.

ROOSEVELT VS. ISAIAH

Chicago Preacher Compares Ex-President to the Hebrew Prophet.

Chicago, April 23.—"Family troubles began with our first parents, Adam and Eve," was the assertion of the Rev. M. M. Parkhurst, of Evanston, in an address at the Methodist preachers' meeting.

"Adam sinned," the speaker said, "with his eyes open, and there is no record that he ever repented. Eve was self-deceived and she repented. If there had been a Methodist Church in those days she would have been received into it."

"Theodore Roosevelt seems to be the modern Isaiah—statesman and prophet—and the people want to hear him because they believe that he speaks the word of God for the times," said the Rev. H. E. Peabody, at the Congregational ministers' meeting in the Masonic temple.

Montreal's Government.

Montreal, April 23.—A movement is on foot at Quebec to introduce legislation in the legislature to curtail the powers of the Montreal controllers. Since the inauguration of the new system there has been considerable friction between the council and the controllers, the aldermen claiming that owing to the powers given to the controllers the council was practically deprived of any power.

Teddy From Another Viewpoint

Paris, April 23.—Reports respecting Mr. Roosevelt's hunting expedition in Africa, which according to Paris newspapers, resulted in the slaughter of 13,000 wild animals, have excited in some quarters a good deal of adverse criticism. Among those who have so expressed themselves, is the president of the Society for the Protection of Animals, who in reply to a question as to the attitude of his society toward Mr. Roosevelt, said to a correspondent:

NEW BOOM CAMP AT SALMON RIVER

A Thousand Lots Staked by Squatters and Claim Jumping is the Popular Sport.

Stewart, B.C., April 23.—An Alaska boom camp which is already creating tremendous excitement has sprung up at the mouth of the Salmon river, about two miles from Stewart on the Alaska side of the boundary line. About 1,000 lots have been staked by squatters, and there promises to be a merry war over claim-jumping.

There is no official government survey, but in order to prevent confusion the squatters have organized a sort of vigilance committee to band together and stand off squatters who try to jump the claims of the original settlers. Ryas and Barber, surveyors of Ketchikan, have been engaged to lay out the townsite. The Vigilant, a boat belonging to the Ketchikan Power company, brought a pile-driver and this is now at work driving piles in the tide flats on which the town is located. The squatters are working day and night building such rude abodes as they think will hold good as their title to their lots.

The first squadding done was by a crowd from Ketchikan. The news of what was transpiring soon reached Stewart and about one hundred people went immediately to the scene and staked lots, so that within a few hours the length and breadth of the Salmon river flats was bristling with stakes like the back of a porcupine.

At a subsequent meeting of the squatters the embryo city was named Portland City and the squatters broke champagne on their stakes at the christening.

A report has come from Ketchikan that people from all over Alaska are trekking to the new excitement, reports of the exceptionally rich surface showing up in the Salmon river valley having spread rapidly.

ENGLISH AND THE EMPIRE

Interesting Speeches at the St. George's Society Banquet.

PARTIALITY FOR ENGLISHMEN

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor Said That all Nationalities Were Welcome But English Especially.

The annual banquet of the St. George's Society of Edmonton was held last night in the King Edward Hotel, when his honor the Lieutenant Governor, his worship the Mayor, Lieut.-Colonel Edwards, Col. Belcher, and many other prominent people were present. After an excellent supper, during which the orchestra played some pleasant selections, the president of the society proposed "The King," and tendered a cordial welcome to the Lieut.-Governor, who honored the society with his presence.

Mr. James Henderson, in proposing "The Empire," said that it was a fitting occasion to toast "the greatest Empire the world has ever known, an empire which he hoped would always be united by a bond of commercial union and sentiment. We have every reason to be proud, he said, of those who are holding the reins of the Empire, and wherever we see the British flag flying we may be sure that we will find prosperity and freedom."

His honor the Lieut.-Governor, in replying, congratulated the chairman on the success of the entertainment. It was no surprise to him to see such grand enthusiasm amongst the men who belonged to the greatest Empire, and although all nationalities come to Canada, he had just a little partiality for the Englishman. The Empire, he said, had not yet reached its zenith and he did not believe there would ever come a day when the sun should set on the British Empire. Differences might arise amongst the colonies, but should there ever come a time when England and Canada were at war, there would be such a combined support of the Motherland as has never before been attained, and the men who were helping to build up this support are the Englishmen who make their homes and take up their life's work in this country.

In replying to the "City of Edmonton" the Mayor said that thirty years ago Edmonton was but a trading post and now it has a population of 25,000. The city, he said, was situated in the centre of one of the richest provinces of Canada, and the possibilities ahead of it were immense.

In proposing the "Army and Navy" Mr. Harold Brunton touched on the subject of how well the Canadian regiments had done in South Africa. In Edmonton, he said, the militia was not given enough support. Men did not join the army just for the pleasure of wearing a red coat, as so many people thought, but to do their duty to their country. In time of war they were the ones who bore the trials and hardships, and bore them successfully as witnessed by the behaviour of the Canadian force in the South African war. Therefore in times of peace every help should be given to those who went to fight for their native land.

Lieut.-Col. Edwards, replying, thoroughly endorsed Mr. Brunton's opinions and said that in time of war we should all be thankful for an army and a navy. The navy was small, but it was a beginning which would lead to better things, and though the army were volunteers, they were volunteers who were willing to fight when the call came.

Mr. W. A. Griesbach proposed "Our Boys of the World Over." Mr. S. Smith proposed "Our Guests," which was replied to by Mr. C. O. Hough. Mr. Macniven, and the president of the St. Patrick's society who responded, in an amusing speech, with the ready wit of an Irishman.

Mr. J. A. K. Turner proposed "The Press," and Archdeacon Gray "The

SMILE GAVE "TIGER" AWAY

"Blind Pig" Raided on Freight
Steamer Out at Sea.

HOW GIN SIN WAS REFORMED

Plunge Into the Sea Caused Him to Turn Over a New Leaf.

New York, April 23.—The British freight steamer Seneca, from the Far East, picked up at Singapore a force of about twenty-five Chinese stokers, including Gin Sing, humorist, originally of Canton. Chief Engineer Smith found that Gin Sing had a cheerful soul by observing the gaiety that overcame the forecastle whenever he appeared, there on his watch below. Gin Sing himself had a smile that might be measured with a yardstick or a yard of the ship herself if she had been rigged in that way. It was suspected that Gin Sing was the custodian and discoverer of samshu and other less Oriental but stronger beverages, and that smiles of one sort or another were his. "A man may smile and smile and be a villain still," said the chief engineer who reads Shakespeare. Also he remarked that a man might smile and smile and be half seas over, although only two days out from the Rock (which is salorese for Gibraltar).

Gin Sing, after doing his stunt in the stokehold on April 1 reported to the chief engineer very weak in the knees, but with a smile the beam of which was equal with the breadth of his face, that he had a pain amidstships. The chief conferred with Capt. Grimes and it was decided to administer the "black draught" to Gin Sing. When the decision was communicated to Gin Sing the smile faded from his face for the first time. He went to the forecastle head and jumped into the sea.

Chief Officer Stewart was just about to leave the bridge and Third Officer Hayward was relieving him when the cry of "Man Overboard" came up to the pair. Stewart signalled the engine room to stop the ship and went off duty. Hayward manoeuvred the Seneca thereafter to reach Gin Sing. The plunge apparently brought a change of heart to the Chinese. He struck out strongly to the ship, before her headway was checked, left him several lengths astern. The Seneca went to windward of him and lowered a boat in charge of Second Officer McIntosh and six men.

Third Officer Hayward said the smile reappeared on the face of Gin Sing when the boat headed towards him. He was rather weak when he was hauled aboard to go up to the top of the sea ladder. He kowtowed with overpowering humility to Capt. Grimes murmuring many times "Sense me" and went to the forecastle. "The chief engineer gave him a draught of Irish brandy, which added lustre to his smile, and he was told that he would not be treated medicinally. He kowtowed his thanks.

The chief engineer suspected that he would be able to get more work, although less smile, from the stokehold workers if the Oriental blind tiger were raided and Gin Sing were no longer able to pipe all hands to the samshu. With the consent of the skipper the chief engineer and some of the other officers overhauled the forecastle and found ten gallons or more of liquor—Irish, English, Scotch, and American, and just common samshu. Most of it was in quart bottles. It was jettisoned, some in cataraft form and some in bottles, over the side.

The Chinese who saw the proceeding looked melancholy—all save Gin Sing. His smile was as unquenchable as his thirst had been. He was confined to the boat in plain English that he had been converted to total abstinence by his plunge in the sea and the kindness of the skipper in putting his ship about to rescue him. He said he would never forget this act of the skipper and that he never would touch samshu. That is why he smiled as broadly as if he had just had a drink when he saw the liquor go over the side.

Some of the white men of the ship's company smiled for another reason. It was the effect that the liquor had on a school of dolphins that had been racing with the ship. One of them caught a bottle of Irish whiskey by the neck and had a riotous time of it, spilling, occasionally using the bottle as a shillelagh on the heads of the other dolphins, at least that is the report that floated in to Ship News. The liquor made the dolphins reckless some of them dashing themselves against the ship. For half an hour the foam spouted high from their Donnybrook Fair.

Chief Engineer Smith says that Gin Sing is now a model stoker and Chinaman. Gin Sing, who was busy playing reporters call yesterday smiled and said merrily "Sense me."

It is not every skipper that will stop his ship to save a Chinese and it is thought that that reflection may have had something to do with the conversation of Gin Sing.

PRUNES ARE NOT PASTRY

Important Ruling by Supreme Court of New York State.

MYLONPOULOS VS COBATOS

Should This Favorite Edmontan Dish be Placed Among Desserts or Among the Vegetables.

New York, April 23.—"Prunes are prunes," and not pastry, according to a ruling made in the appellate term of the supreme court when Judges Seabury, Lehman and Gavegan, sustained a ruling made by Judge Laner, of the municipal court, in the case of John Mylonopoulos and John Cobatos, who became involved in a foodstuff controversy in conducting a restaurant.

In his complaint Mylonopoulos set forth that Cobatos leased him the front part of his store with the sole right to sell in the place Turkish coffee, cigars, cigarettes and "pastry of all kinds." In violation of the contract, Mylonopoulos declared, Cobatos began to sell copious quantities of prunes and rice puddings. They got into an argument and Mylonopoulos wanted to know, "What is a prune, then?"

Cobatos admitted that he was poor at guessing riddles and didn't mean to take any chances on snap judgment. However, he declared:

"A prune is not a pastry and the Chinese use rice pudding in the same place and time as we use meat. If you want to know what a pastry is look an apple dumpling in the face. You never heard of prunes being lead into the arena of a good dinner under the alias of pastry, did you?"

"Cobatos, that's just it. You must remember that I was a blase, bolting boarder for years. You never had a closed season when prunes are not pastry," they argued. Each succeeding day rent them further asunder. The policeman on the beat was called in. The two men went to law. Mylonopoulos prayed for damages to the amount of $500. Judge Laner, who first heard the case in the municipal court, promptly held that prunes were not a pastry after the manner born. He put the rice pudding question up to the jury that heard the case. They deliberated and returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $101 damages.

Counsel for Cobatos appealed from this judgment. Claude W. Gibson, who appeared for him, quoted liberally before the bar of the appellate term from Blackstone, but from Webster, Century and the Standard dictionaries. The definitions which presumably carried the most weight were these:

"Pastry: Viands made of paste (thence, not a prune shaken from the plum tree) or of which paste constituted a principal ingredient; particularly the crust or cover of a pie, tart or the like."

"Paste: A soft composition of substances as flour moistened with water or milk and kneaded." (i.e., rice pudding.)

The final verdict, it is believed, will have a far-reaching effect and cause many inmates of table board resorts to insist upon the prune entry being scratched from the last position on the menu card and being moved up in the vegetable division. However, when not served in their table form and when they are tastefully attired with white chiffon, cream bos around their necks it is thought they will pass muster and be given the coveted position near the apollinaris water.

Burned Where He Fell

Settin, April 22.—The body of Weiner Hugo Delbruck, the member of the Reichstag, who was killed in a wrecked balloon, was sunk in the sea near where the machine fell. This was in accordance with a wish Delbruck had expressed to his wife, that in the event of a fatal accident his body should be buried where he perished.

The casket was weighted with zinc and slipped into the waters from the deck of the steamer Moltke in the presence of his widow and others of his family and intimate friends.

Dead Body As Evidence

Santa Rosa, April 20.—Probably for the first time in a trial in this state a dead body was introduced as evidence in a murder trial here. The dead infant of Willard Thomas and his wife was placed in evidence when they were brought up to face the charge of having killed the child a few hours after its birth.

to the new agreement if the construction company had only agreed to build the road as per the first specifications. Mr. Woods replied that at the time this letter was written he did not know if the agreement between the Waterways Company and the Canada West Construction Company had been prepared the letter in good faith. "As a matter of fact the letter is useless unless the change in the agreement is made," said Mr. Woods, "and as we are dealing only with the Waterways Railway Company we could hold them responsible for the road being built according to the agreement."

Mr. Woods also stated that he did not know until it had been read from the minute books of the company in the Commission enquiry that the agreement between the Waterways and Construction Companies had been made.

The Specification

The specifications were then taken up and Woods said that they had been copied exactly from the Canadian Northern specifications. Although they had no copy of the Crow's Nest Pass specifications the ones they had copied from for the Waterways were the standard specifications of the C. N. R.

From this point Bennett shifted to the sale of the bonds. Mr. Woods stated definitely that until he had heard Mr. Bennett read the prospectus for the House was in session he had not seen or heard of it before and did not know on what terms the bonds were to be sold to the public. Regarding the expenses of himself and W. J. McLeod, the deputy treasurer, he said, that these had been paid by the province when they went east to New York in connection with the delivery of the bonds and that the Clarks or Morgan & Co. had not contributed to their expense in any way.

Plans Not Approved

"The plans and profiles of the road had not been approved when you gave up your office had they?" was the next question, and Woods replied: "No, and they are not approved yet. The company have only graded between here and Hatzburg and they have to take the route they have taken in this instance as there is no other route open to them, so here is no doubt that this part of the road will be approved."

Mr. Bennett then questioned the witness as to whether he had received any benefit from the Waterways Railway or expected to get any benefit for the work he had done.

"I received nothing except my salary as deputy attorney general," said Woods, "and I do not expect to receive anything more."

"Then if there has been anything wrong, it is only in the nature of an error of judgment," queried Bennett, "and you made no deliberate attempt to make it easier for the Waterways people."

"Exactly," replied Woods. "Then do you mean to tell me that the contract you made is the best that you could draw up?"

"Yes, in the light of my then knowledge it was. You must remember that this was a matter of bargaining. If I had been able to draw up an ideal contract and could have forced them to accept it I could have done much better, but this was a matter of give and take on both sides. The executive had made certain concessions and the railroad had made certain concessions. It was an executive contract and they made the terms. It was the best I could do having regard to the fact that the terms had been already made and all I had to do was put them into the form of a contract."

This ended Wood evidence and he was allowed to step down while Mr. Bennett picked up his bag and immediately started out to catch the afternoon train south. It is not likely that Mr. Woods will be again required to give evidence and he will leave almost immediately for England to fight the taxation cases of the C. P. R. in the Old Country. These are the cases which the C. P. R. has appealed from court to court in their effort to get out of paying taxes to the province.

When Mr. Woods left the witness stand Mr. Walsh announced that he would be the last witness called at the present session as Premier Ruthenford was not yet well enough to attend and that in any case they would not have been able to get through with him before the noon adjournment on Saturday.

Several Minty Letters

He then went on to put in several more letters from Minty's files as exhibits. These letters are all between the Clarks and Minty and have been referred to at times before. They are typical Minty letters and everything is given with great detail, so much so that they frequently caused a great deal of laughter in the court room. Irrelevant matters of low mercantile proportion, are gone into fully.

All these exhibits dealt with the sale of the bonds, the progress made at various times and are in the nature of reports and advice to Clarke. One telegram which is among them is from Clarke to Minty and advises him that delay in selling the bonds would be dangerous as the time for the delivery to Morgan & Co. was almost up and an ominous increase in the bank rates in England had been noticed.

After these exhibits had been put in as evidence Manager McMillan of the Royal Bank here was placed in the box and swore to giving all the information to Messrs. Walsh and Johnston that he had. Mr. Walsh explained that this was a formal matter and that they had been given every facility for examining everything by Mr. McMillan and that the placing of him in the box was not a reflection on his integrity in the matter but a necessity in order to have everything done properly.

This ended the session for the present in Edmonton but on their return from the east the commission will again meet here.

Application was made this morning by H. A. Robson, K.C., in Winnipeg, to set aside the order of Judge McDonald in the Manitoba courts for the production of witnesses and documents in Winnipeg. Robson is acting for W. A. Mallafie, formerly trustee for the Athabasca syndicate, and Mr. Walsh stated that he had already instructed Isaac Pittblado, a well-known Winnipeg lawyer to oppose this application which will be heard on Saturday.

C.N.R. All-Water Route.

Port Arthur, April 23.—The Canadian Northern proposes to build a new all-water system of shipment, which will probably reduce the time of the passage several days. Under this arrangement only one trans-shipment will be necessary. Goods will be brought from Montreal in Royal ocean liners, which are said to be the fastest steamers plying to Canada, and from Montreal the goods will be conveyed to Port Arthur in the company's steamers, the Ames, Pellatt, and Plummer.

Votes for Women
Arlington, April 22.—With banners flying, finery flutter and occupying a procession of taxicabs nearly a mile long, the suffragettes in convention here moved on Capitol Hill yesterday and presented to congress 60,000 individual demands for votes for women. The mammoth petition was divided into little ones each tied with a bit of yellow ribbon and grouped into little bundles of convenient size for a suffragette to carry under her arm. Senators and representatives from every state received some part of the petition.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,
Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles"

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

When this person learned that the Calabrozes had left he would doubtless hurry after them. This is the conclusion that was reached by Mr. Armitage, who at times was singularly happy in his speculations as to the mental processes of other people. Sometimes, however, he made mistakes, as will appear.

The gentleman for whom John Armitage had been waiting arrived at last and was received as a distinguished guest by the landlord.

M. Chauvenet inquired for his friends the Calabrozes and was clearly annoyed to find that they had gone, and no sooner had this intelligence been conveyed to him than he, too, studied time tables and consulted steamer advertisements. John Armitage in various direct ways was observant of M. Chauvenet's activities, and looking at the steamer offices interested him so greatly that he reserved passage on two additional steamers and ordered the straps buckled about his trunk, for it had occurred to him that he might find it necessary to leave Geneva in a hurry.

It was not likely that M. Chauvenet, being now under his eyes, would escape him, and John Armitage, making a hasty dinner, learned from his waiter that M. Chauvenet, being worn from his travels, was dining alone in his room.

About 8 o'clock, as Armitage turned the pages of Pizarro in the smoking room, Chauvenet appeared at the door, scrutinized the group within and passed on. Armitage had caught his coat, but and stuck into the smoking room, to be ready for possible emergencies, when Chauvenet stepped out into the street he followed.

It was unusually cold for the season, and a fine drizzle filled the air. Chauvenet had hurriedly put on his coat at once away from the lake, turned into the Boulevard Helvetique, thence into the Boulevard Froissart with its colony of pensions. He walked rapidly until he reached a house that was distinguished from its immediate neighbors only by its unlighted upper windows.

He pulled the bell, and the door was at once opened and instantly closed.

Armitage, following at twenty yards on the opposite side of the street, paused abruptly at the sudden ending of his chase. It was not an hour for loitering, for the Geneva gendarmes were rather good eyes, but Armitage had by no means satisfied his curiosity as to the nature of Chauvenet's errand. He walked on to make sure he was unobserved, crossed the street and again passed the dark, silent house which Chauvenet had entered. He noted the place carefully. It gave no outward appearance of being occupied. He assumed from the general plan of the neighboring buildings that there was a courtyard at the rear of the darkened house, accessible through a narrow passageway at the side. As he studied the situation he kept moving to avoid observation and presently, at a moment when he was quite alone in the street, walked rapidly to the house Chauvenet had entered.

Gentlemen in search of adventures do well to avoid the continental wall. Mr. Armitage brushed the glass from the top with his hat, mingling softly within under cover of the rain drip. The plaster had crumbled from the bricks in spots, giving a foot its opportunity, and Mr. Armitage drew himself up to the top and dropped within. The front door and windows stared at him blankly, and he committed his fortunes to the bricked passageway. The rain, down now coming down in earnest, and at the rear of the house water had begun to drip noisily into an iron spot. The electric lights from neighboring streets made a kind of twilight even in the darkened court, and Armitage threaded his way among a network of clotheslines to the rear wall and viewed the premises. He knew his Geneva from many previous visits. The quarter was undeniably respectable, and there, to be sure, no reason why the blinds of a house should not be carefully drawn at nightfall at the pleasure of the occupants. The whole lower door seemed utterly deserted. Only at one point on the third floor was there any sign of light, and this the merest hint.

The increasing fall of rain did not encourage loitering in the wet courtyard, where the down-pour now milled noisily, and Armitage crossed the court and further assured himself that the lower floor was dark and silent. Balconies were bracketed against the wall at the second and third stories, and the slight iron ladder leading thither terminated at a foot above his head. John Armitage was aware that his position, if discovered, was, to say least, untenable, but he was secure from observation by police, and he assumed that the occupants of the house were probably too deeply engrossed with their affairs to waste much time on what might happen without. Armitage sprang up and caught the lowest round of the ladder, and in a moment his tall figure was a dark blot against the wall as he crept warily upward. The rear rooms of the second story were as dark and quiet as those below. Armitage coasted to the third story, where a door as well as several windows gave upon the balcony, and he found that it was from a broken corner of the door shade that a sharp blade of light cut the dark. All continued quiet below. He heard the traffic of the neighboring thoroughfares quite distinctly, and from a kitchen near by came the rough clatter of dishwashing to the accompaniment of a quarrel in German between the maids. For the moment he felt secure and bent down close to the door and listened.

Two men were talking, and evidently the matter under discussion was of importance, for they spoke with a kind of eager deliberation, and the long pauses in the dialogue lent color to the belief that some weighty matter was being discussed. The beat of the rain on the balcony and its steady rattle in the spout intervened to dull the sound of voices, but presently one of the speakers, with an impatient exclamation, rose, opened the small glass paneled door a few inches, peered out and returned to his seat, with an exclamation of relief.

Armitage had dropped down the ladder half a dozen rounds as he heard the latch snap in the door. He waited in instant to make sure he had not been seen, then crept back to the balcony and found that the slight opening in the door made it possible for him to see as well as hear.

"It's stifling in this hole," said Chauvenet, drawing deeply upon his cigarette and blowing a cloud of smoke. "If you pardon the informality I will lay aside my coat."

He carefully hung the garment upon the back of his chair to hold its shape, then resumed his seat. His companion watched him meanwhile with a certain intensity.

"You take excellent care of your clothes, my dear Jules. I never have been able to fold a coat without ruining it."

The rain was soaking Armitage thoroughly, but its persistent beat covered any slight noises made by his own movements, and he was now intent upon the little room and its occupants.

He observed the man with which the man kept close to his coat, and he pondered the matter as he hung upon the balcony. If Chauvenet had been on his way to America it was possible that he would carry with him the important paper whose loss had caused so much anxiety to the Austrian minister. If so, where was it during his stay in Geneva?

"The old man's death is only the first step. We require a succession of deaths."

"We require three, to be explicit, not more or less. We should be fortunate if the remaining two could be accomplished as easily as Stroebel's."

"He was a beast. He is well dead." "That depends on the way you look at it. They seem really to be mourning the old beggar at Vienna. It is the way of a people. They like to be ruled by a savage hand. The people, as you have heard me say before, are fools."

The last speaker was a young man whom Armitage had never seen before. He was a decided blond, with close trimmed straw colored beard and slightly curling hair. Opposite him, facing the door, sat Chauvenet. On the table between them were decanters and liqueur glasses.

"I am going to America."

He was now intent upon the little room and its occupants.

There was a keen irony in the fellow's tongue, and the edge of it evoked the technical Chauvenet, who scorned and bent forward, with his fingers on the table.

"Enough of that, if you please." "As you will, my dear Jules. She is waiting for me for offering me evidence on the regrettable departure of his belle Americaine. If you had not been so silent on matters of state you would undoubtedly have found her here. As it is, you are now obliged to see her on her native soil. A month in Washington may do much for you. She is beautiful and reasonably rich. Her brother, the tall captain, is said to be the best horseman in the American army."

"Humph! He is an ass," ejaculated Chauvenet.

A servant now appeared bearing a fresh bottle of cordon. He was distinguished by a small head upon a tall and powerful body and bore little resemblance to a house servant. While he brushed the cigar ashes from the table the men continued their talk without heeding him.

Chauvenet and his friend had spoken from the first in French, but in addressing some directions to the servant, the blond, who assumed the role of host, employed a Servian dialect.

"I think we were saying that the mortal list in certain directions will have to be stimulated a trifle before we can do our young friend Francis any good. You have business in America, carino. That paper we flicked from old Stroebel strengthens our hold on Francis, but there is still that question as to Karl and Frederick Augustus. Our dear Francis is not satisfied. He wishes to be quite sure that his dear father and brother are dead. We must reassure him, dearest Jules."

"Don't be a fool, Durand. You never seem to understand that the United States of America is a trifle larger than a barnyard. And I don't believe those fellows are over there. They're probably lying in wait here somewhere ready to take advantage of any opportunity—that is, if they are alive. A man can hardly fail to be impressed with the fact that so few lives stand between him and—"

"The heights—the heights!" And the young man, whom Chauvenet called Durand, lifted his tiny glass airily.

"Yes, the heights," replied Chauvenet in a little drunally.

"But that declaration—that document! You have never honored me with a glimpse, but you have put safely away, I dare say."

"That is no place for it, but I dare risk. It is always within my reach, my dear friend."

"You will do well," said Chauvenet. "To keep an eye open in Vienna for the unknown. If you hear murmurs in Hungary one of these fine days—Nothing has happened for some time; therefore much may happen."

He glanced at his watch.

"I have work in Paris before sailing for New York. Shall we discuss the matter of those Peruvian claims? That is business. These other affairs are more in the nature of delightful diversions, my dear comrade."

They drew nearer the table, and Durand produced a box of papers, over which he bent with serious attention. Armitage had heard practically all of their dialogue and, what was of equal interest, had been able to study the faces and learn the tones of voice of the two conspirators. He was cramped from his position on the narrow balcony and wet and chilled by the rain, which was now slowly clearing. He had learned much that he wished to know and with an ease that astonished him, and he was well content to withdraw with gratitude for his good fortune.

His legs were numb, and he clung close to the railing of the little ladder for support as he crept toward the area. At the second story his foot slipped on the wet iron, smooth from long use, and he stumbled. He made several steps before he recovered himself. He listened a moment, heard nothing but the thicket of the rain in the spout, then continued his retreat.

As he stepped out upon the brick courtyard he was seized from behind by a pair of strong arms that clasped

Lumber Trade Active

Grand Forks, April 22—Robinson & Lequire, local sawmill men, who operate a mill on Smelter Lake, have this season cut nearly 800,000 feet of logs up the North Fork, and have already floated some 600,000 feet down the river to the lake. They expect to commence the cutting of lumber on April 25.

The big mill of the Yale-Columbia Lumber company at Cochrane, which commenced operations for the season. The mill will be worked time and a quarter so far as is known, but may overrun this as the season progresses.

Canadian Wheat Goes South

Gretna, Man., April 22—The amount of Manitoba wheat which is crossing the boundary line at this point is so large that it has begun to excite general comment.

No less than forty cars of Canadian wheat comprised one train which went out on the Great Northern this week. This is the heaviest shipment which has ever crossed the line at Gretna. Heavy freights both north and south on the Hill road are now the rule.

Cars loaded with settlers' effects coming from the United States are returned across the line laden with Canadian grain. In fact the traffic has become so heavy that the officials are talking of constructing a double track from Portage la Prairie through Gretna to Grand Forks, N.D.

University Smoking Contest

Ithaca, N.Y., April 22—As a result of a wager made at the Town and Gown Club, a contest was held to see who could smoke a cigar longest without letting it go out. About twenty-five professors and professional men took part in the contest.

All were provided with the same sized cigars and at the stroke of a bell they were lighted. At the end of fifty minutes most of the cigars were either out or their smokers had retired from the contest, but Prof. Theodore Monroe, Prof. C. L. Durham, Dean Frank Irvine, and Dr. H. L. Andrews were still puffing away.

At the end of 70 minutes Prof. Irvine retired from the contest, and at 80 minutes, Prof. Durham suddenly disappeared. Prof. Monroe, by the aid of a toothpick, smoked his cigar 85 minutes and was declared the winner. He was awarded the prize, 5 metal stein.

Prevent Loss by Floods

Washington, April 22—Engineers of the United States geological survey are studying means to prevent or diminish flood losses in the United States. They estimate the annual damage at $100,000,000.

CANADIAN'S INVENTION

Is Found a Great Success by United States Navy.

Philadelphia, April 22—The U. S. battleship Indiana has returned to the Philadelphia navy yard after a five days' test of the brake which is claimed to help in the quick stoppage of a warship. Capt. Chauncey Thomas, who came from Washington to observe the test, said that the brake worked successfully. With its use, he said, the Indiana could be stopped in half her own length when going at full speed. The brake, which is an invention of a Canadian, is attached to each side of the ship and is operated from the engine room.

LABOR PARTY'S MAJORITY

Has Led of 10 Seats in Senate and 13 in Lower House.

Sydney, Australia, April 22—The final results of the general election give the Labor party a majority of ten seats in the Senate and of thirteen in the House of Representatives. In regard to the two questions submitted by referendum, the proposal that the Commonwealth take over the states' debts was affirmed, but the second proposal respecting the financial relations between the Commonwealth and the States was rejected.

TWO CHARGES LAID
AGAINST McNICOLPolice Believe That They Secured a Much-Wanted Gentleman
at Strathcona

By the arrest of M. McNicol, who describes himself as a real estate agent, in the Commercial Hotel, Strathcona, last night, the police believe they have secured a prisoner who has been on the "Men Wanted" list for over a month.

McNicol, who was arrested by Detective Seymour of the local force, has had warrants out against him since the early part of last March charging him with obtaining money by false pretences.

McNicol is a well-dressed man of respectable appearance, about sixty years of age, rather stout and short, and with gray hair and moustache. He made no show of resistance when the detective stepped up to him, but came over to Edmonton very quietly and spent the night in the cells.

The prisoner, it is said, hails from Wetaskiwin, and it is alleged that he has been posing as an agent for the National Securities Co., and on the strength of this selling land in the Fort George district. Two such sales have been reported to the police, and it is expected that others will follow.

McNicol appeared before Magistrate Cowan in the police court this morning, when both charges were read to him. The first charge was laid by Charles Roy of this city, who accused the prisoner of obtaining $135 from him by false pretences. The second charge was laid by Christ. Glazed of Spruce Grove, from whom it is alleged, McNicol got $270 in payment for Fort George property.

McNicol neither pleaded nor elected this morning, but said he would be ready for a preliminary hearing on Monday afternoon. Bail was fixed at $1,000, but until he can get two sureties of $500 each, the prisoner will remain in the cells.

Alberta Permanent Loan.

James Fax Coming.

Probably no more welcome announcement could be made to the concert-going people of Edmonton than the one that James Fax, the celebrated humorist, will appear with his company on April 23rd at the Empire theatre. It is unnecessary to say anything regarding this great artist, for is not the name of "Fax" a household word from ocean to ocean? Mr. Fax is supported by an exceptionally strong company of artists who will no doubt draw one of the largest houses of the season.

CURRIE STREET CHURCH

THE DAY IN STRATHCONA

Budget of News from the City on the South Bank of the River

The ball game between Varsity and Alberta College has been called off on account of the inability of the latter to collect a team.

Although city real estate is not moving with any degree of rapidity, a distinct activity is recognized in the sale of farm lands. Mr. J. P. Gallagher reports the sale of several farms this week in the Beaumont and Agriola districts for which good prices were realized.

In the Metropolitan Methodist Church the usual services will be held on Sunday. In the morning Rev. Dr. Hunter of McDougall Church, Edmonton, will preach, and in the evening the pastor will conduct the service. The subject for the evening discourse is "Penny Wise and Pound Foolish."

The Fax Concert Co. appeared in the Collegiate Assembly Hall under the auspices of the S.C.L. An excellent programme was rendered and the artists besides being most talented were exceedingly liberal and responded to encores for every number and in several instances gave two or three encores. The troupe was well worth hearing and was on a par with the high standard of entertainment generally set by Fax on his Western tours. Fax himself was funnier than ever and his repertoire of new comic songs seemed inexhaustible. The soloists, Miss Elliott and Mr. DeMille were excellent. Miss Galbraith showed herself a good elocutionist.

Roosevelt in Africa.

The numerous frequenters of Stratland have been disappointed to hear that the motion pictures of his expedition were not shown last night. It had been arranged that they should be shipped from New York to be in time for yesterday's matinee. However, the train came in minus the precious parcel, a slight mishap having delayed its start. We are assured, though, that it will be shown today and Monday and Tuesday next week without fail. In all probability this delay will help us better to appreciate both the pictures and also the trouble which the management of this popular theatre has gone to, in order to procure the cream of the motion picture world for its patrons.

Property Booming.

The Seton Smith Company has sold fifty-one lots in Hemphrys for cash. It has also sold thirty acres in Dominion Park.

Miss Jessie MacLachlan.

A well filled house was on hand last night to listen to Miss Jessie MacLachlan and her company of artists at the Empire Theatre. Miss MacLachlan was never in better voice than she was last night, and the audience showed their marked approval by the number of recalls that they gave her. Mr. Craighall Sherry, the comedian, also proved himself a favorite with the house and Mr. Robert Buchanan, the accompanist, showed himself to be a pianist of more than ordinary ability. Mr. Barnaby Nelson supplied the baritone selections on the programme.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Teachers Should Know

(Published at the request and under the direction of Edmonton and District Temperance Union.)
That no alcoholic drink, whether beer, wine, or distilled liquor, contains any nourishing or strengthening value.

That the alcohol contained in all spirituous drinks is a poison which impairs the vital processes of the cells and tissues of the body and therefore injures the health of the user in proportion to the strength and amount.

That alcoholic indulgence causes serious acute and chronic diseases of the vital organs particularly of the heart, liver, kidneys, and stomach. That the use of alcohol makes one more liable to contract infectious diseases, the destructive tuberculosis and syphilis.

That alcohol in any form and amount is particularly injurious to children because of their growing bodies, and it is to be absolutely withheld from them.

That alcohol, by weakening the higher brain centres involved in reflection and self-control, leaves the way open for the expression of the lower impulses.

The teacher must therefore be well convinced that an energetic campaign against alcohol would open the way for a general advance in culture and health.

FOREIGNERS FLEE
FOR THEIR LIVESWhole Villages Have Been Destroyed
by Wild Mobs of Chinese Fanatics.

Hankow, April 23.—The situation in Hunan province is reported as critical. Women and children are fleeing for their lives from Shanghai, the capital. A number of villages near that city have been reduced to ashes by native mobs. The country is placarded with threats to kill all foreigners. Missionaries state that the gunboats in the river have their guns trained up on Changsha and nearby points and have afforded refuge for many foreigners. Three thousand Chinese imperial soldiers are occupying strategic points of the capital and detachments are being hurried to the outlying districts where rioting is reported. Many Chinese have been killed. In one instance a technical school was set on fire and thirty students burned to death. When vessels approached Changsha to rescue the imprisoned ones, the Chinese mob saturated junks with kerosene oil from the looted stations of the Standard Oil Co. and setting them afire allowed them to float down stream in an attempt to fire the oncoming steamers.
